1988 budget proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's budget was presented Wednesday with the first $1 billion spending outline in history, a fiscal 1988 budget proposal that the president's chief economist will be "accompanied with a lot of pain."

The plan will come in the form of more than $50 billion in spending cuts and other savings designed to meet the $108 billion deficit target set by the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law, said Beryl A. Sprinkel, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

"There is no way to cut back or even restrain spending that doesn't create problems in the various departments," Sprinkel told a conference sponsored by the conservative American Enterprise Institute.

Federal agency heads got their first look at the new budget proposal, the first installment of which will be submitted to Congress on Jan. 5, at Wednesday's Cabinet meeting.

The presentation was accompanied by a strong pitch by Reagan to go along with the deep spending cuts needed to meet the Gramm-Rudman deficit target, according to presidential spokesman Larry Speakes.

More detailed information on individual cuts recommended by the president's Office of Management and Budget was being sent to each federal agency, according to OMB spokesman Edwin Deficit-reduction steps proposed by OMB Director James C. Miller III go far beyond the spending cuts Cabinet members had recommended for their own agencies, according to administration officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Even the departments of Education and Energy — the only two federal agencies to submit preliminary budget requests that came in under White House guidelines — were told to pare back their programs further, the officials said.

With a month to go before the president's budget is put in final form, the broad outlines of the spending plan for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1 were beginning to take shape.

Aide silent; Bush speaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's former national security adviser refused Wednesday to give Congress details of the secret sale of weapons to Iran or the diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels. Vice President George Bush conceded that the spiraling controversy has harmed the administration, saying, "Clearly mistakes were made."

Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter became the second recently-departed administration official to invoke the Fifth Amendment in declining to answer questions from the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the committee vowed that lawmakers would piece together the facts "with or without them," and other committee members said that unspecified Cabinet secretaries will be called to the panel's heavily guarded room to testify.

While Congress continued delving into the most serious crisis of the Reagan presidency, there was increasing pressure for the departure of Donald T. Regan, the president's powerful chief of staff. But White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Regan has no intention of leaving and said the president "has not asked him to leave."

Reagan did not discuss possible staff changes when he spoke to businesswomen in the White House. Instead, he said he hoped the furor would not undercut support for the Contra forces fighting the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

"We cannot let recent events distract us from the cause of those brave fighters for freedom around the world," he said. As his audience applauded, Reagan said, "Yes, you did just make my day."

Reagan could not have been as pleased with the worry he received earlier in the day from key GOP congressional leaders. One participant, speaking on condition he not be identified by name, said Reagan was advised to seek changes in his administration.

Outside the White House, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said the message to Reagan was this: "There are going to be more and more stories, every day there will be something new. Some other player will be involved, somebody the president never even heard of."

Bush's comments came in a speech in which he said he fully supported Reagan's decision to make secret arms sales to Iran.

Decision made by BYU V.P.

Football players suspended

BYU CHRISTENSEN
Director

Three BYU football players with third-degree prescriptions for related felonies have been suspended from Saturday's game against the Air Force, said Paul Richards, director of public communications.

Paul Richards, a junior tight end from Provo, Nev.; J.C. VonColln, a linebacker from Clearfield, and Ladd Akeo, a senior from Pearl City, Hawaii, were suspended of their suspension Monday morning.

The players have 14 days to appear in court for arraignment.

VonColln and Akeo have been charged with three felonies. Akeo's felony charge, according to the Provo Police Department, is possession of prescription drugs. The charges include possession of prescription drugs and possession of prescription drugs.

"We had enough information for the suspension, the investigation is still continuing under the direction of Student Life to determine what further action is necessary."

— Paul Richards
director of Public Communications

Richards said the suspension decision was made by BYU Vice President John Stohltz and the Office of Student Life in collaboration with BYU head football coach LaVell Edwards.

"We had enough information for the suspension," said Richards. "The investigation is still continuing under the direction of Student Life to determine what further action is necessary."

"We hope to have a decision by the end of the semester, which is next week. That decision will determine if the players will be able to continue on the team."

Richards hopes the highly-publicized nature of this week's allegations will "help to prevent problems in the future."

"Our attempt is to help students with these types of problems," said Richards. "We want to get them in the right circumstances to cure the problem."

Steve Sanders was also charged with altering drug prescriptions.

Sanders, who was scheduled to be a redshirt linebacker this season, was charged in a similar incident this fall. According to Richards, he is not currently enrolled at BYU.

Edwards and the rest of the football team are in the process of preparing for Saturday's game. The winner gets a berth in the Freedom Bowl on Dec. 30 to play UCLA. He hopes to put the drug situation on the back burner.

"Just ignore it," said Edwards. "We have to get ready to play and focus in at the task at hand."

Darren Handley, a sophomore from Sandy, will replace Molini at tight end. Handley has caught nine passes for 11 yards in a backup role this season.

Regan Hansen, a sophomore from American Fork, and Andy Katoa, a sophomore from Salt Lake City, will replace the two suspended linebackers.

Katoa has five unassisted tackles and seven assisted tackles so far this season. Hansen has recorded six unassisted tackles and 12 assisted tackles.

Thyroid pills relieve PMS, says doctor

PRINCETON (AP) — Thyroid hormone pills can relieve premenstrual syndrome for many women whose symptoms appear to be linked with sluggish thyroids, suggests a new, preliminary report. The study found often-mild thyroid deficiencies in 10 of the victims of premenstrual syndrome who were tested. Those who took thyroid pills reported complete relief from the symptoms.

However, several experts said they doubt that the thyroids what's known as hypothyroidism contribute to premenstrual syndrome in most of the common disorder.

The link between the thyroid gland and premenstrual syndrome was discovered by Dr. Arthur Prange of the Biopsychiatry Center in Princeton, N.J. The results of her preliminary experiments were published as a letter in Thursday's British Journal of Medicine.

In an interview, she said she has found more than 300 women "where the correlation is absolutely profound" between premenstrual syndrome and underactive thyroids, and said she has used thyroid pills routinely to treat them.

"I am so sure I know it works that when it doesn't, I've been able to find a problem," such as drinking or drugs, that interferes with the thyroid supplements, Brayshaw said.

Brayshaw said low thyroid function may not actually cause PMS. Instead, the two problems could be the result of some broader underlying hormonal disorder. But she said she believes virtually everyone with premenstrual syndrome has thyroid deficiencies.

The reaction of several other experts to Brayshaw's work ranged from cautious support to skepticism.

At the National Institute of Mental Health, Dr. David Rubinow said he found it amazing that nearly all the PMS victims showed thyroid abnormalities and also that all of them could have responded to the treatment.

"I think that she is probably onto something, that there is probably a group of people for whom this may be a relevant biological clue," he said. But he added that a "great deal more rigorously obtained and well-controlled data is needed."

Dr. Arthur Prange of the University of North Carolina and president of the American College of Neuropsychopharmacology, said the research doesn't mean that all or even most cases are caused by low thyroid function, "but I bet there is a subset in whom it really can be demonstrated."

But Dr. Lawrence Wood of Massachusetts General Hospital noted that one in 10 women have failing thyroid glands by the time they reach age 45.

"I don't think her hypothesis that everyone who has PMS is thyroid deficient is necessarily true, and I'm quite sure from our own patient experience that there are people who are on thyroid (hormone) and still have PMS," said Wood, president of the Thyroid Foundation of America.

Springville building destroyed

Fire Marshal investigating blaze

The State Fire Marshal's Office is investigating the cause of a fire in Springville early Wednesday morning that destroyed a 30,000-square-foot building.

How's Wood Classics, located on the Frontage Road of Interstate 15 just south of Springville, is considered a "total loss" after 37 firefighters from Springville and surrounding areas battled the flames for over six hours, according to Springville's fire department.

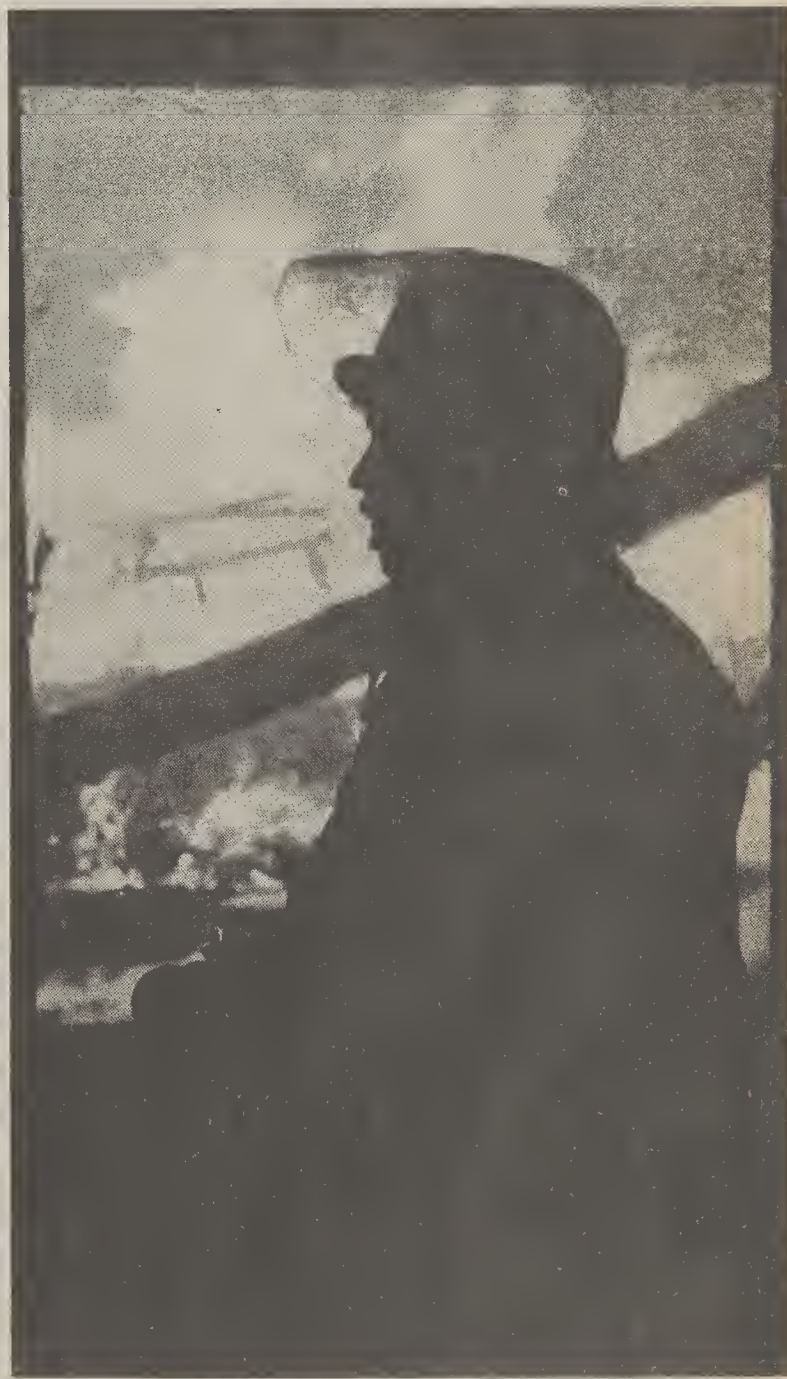

Firefighters arrived at the scene about 12:33 a.m., Springville Fire Chief Phil Whitney said. At that time flames were coming through the roof of the building.

The blaze was difficult to fight because of combustible materials inside the building which houses a wood cabinet shop. The nearest fire hydrant was a mile and a half from the scene.

Items destroyed in the blaze were a cabinet shop with all its equipment, finished cabinets and a variety of stock materials.

The value of the building and its contents value was not known at press time.

The establishment was owned by Clare Barlow of Springville and Dave Barlow of Payson.

Self-insurance saves county money

PROVO (AP) — Utah County's decision last spring to take its chances with self-insurance has paid off with savings of thousands of dollars, officials say. Commissioners decided to go it alone in the liability insurance field after learning the county's coverage would cost $380,000 for 1986, more than twice its 1985 premium of $117,000.

"The highest year we ever had for paying claims was 1981, when we paid $30,000," said Commissioner Robert W. Warnick.

So far this year, the county has paid out between $10,000 and $15,000 in claims for 1986.

After abandoning its traditional liability insurance coverage, the county opened a trust fund for insurance, depositing $250,000. In January, an additional $200,000 will be deposited bringing funds for county self-insurance to more than $450,000.

Although some critics have said the county's decision has left the taxpayers vulnerable to a large suit, Warnick said the commissioners chose the best option available.

Warnick said the county was unable to get umbrella insurance to cover large claims at a reasonable cost. He also said the county is still looking into various possibilities for pooling with counties that have similar risks to Utah County.

County officials have also been looking into ways to decrease the risk of lawsuits.

Pollution warming the North Pole

WASHINGTON (AP) — A warm blanket of soot may be raising temperatures around the North Pole by absorbing newly arriving sunlight as well as light reflected from the ice-cap below, government scientists reported Wednesday.

"One pollution plume we encountered on a flight over the icecap off Barrow, Alaska, last March was the equivalent of five or six large power plants putting all their effluents in a single plume," said Dr. Russell Schnell of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The pollution "was about 100 miles wide and 1,000 feet deep, and when we first flew into it we thought we had flown into the plume of a volcanic eruption. We didn't believe the instruments on the aircraft," Schnell said in a statement.

The NOAA report was based on a five-nation study of the haze that has

Spending spree: police arrest two

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two California teen-agers took off on a cross-country binge of fancy meals and new clothes after finding a suitcase stuffed with about $8,000 in drug money, but their spending spree attracted police, who arrested them five days later.

Raymond Salter, 13, and Marc Hairrell, 14, were picked up Sunday at Port Columbus International Airport with nearly $5,000 and a bag containing less than a gram of cocaine.

Each was being held Wednesday on a charge of drug abuse, but Columbus Police Officer Floyd Wise said he would probably seek dismissal of the charges so the boys could return home to Petaluma, Calif. A detention hearing set for Wednesday was continued until Thursday.

"They were buying fine dinners, riding in taxis and limousines," Wise said. "They just got mixed up in something that they shouldn't have."

Wise said the boys told police they left California Nov. 26 after Hairrell found a suitcase that had been tossed out a window during a police search at a Petaluma home. It contained an estimated $8,000 in cash and a bag containing less than a gram of cocaine.

"They didn't even realize it was cocaine," Wise said. "All they saw was the $100 bills, the 50s and the 20s."

He said the teen-agers flew to Chicago from San Francisco on Thanksgiving Day, buying tickets under assumed names. After spending a few days in Chicago, they flew to Columbus, where Salter grew up.

The youths were arrested after police were told of two teen-agers leaving $100 tips with airport concessionaires. At the time, Wise said, the boys had ditched the suitcase and stuffed the money into their pockets.

He said he charged the boys with delinquency counts of drug abuse simply to hold them until their parents could be contacted. Wise said the boys had purchased round-trip tickets, so their transportation home would be no problem once they are released.

State school system still suffering cuts

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Since schools opened in September, the state's public education system has lost $21.6 million due to budget cuts and a drop in property tax collections — roughly 3.5 percent of the Legislature's 1986-87 appropriations.

Lawmakers cut 2.5 percent, $15.6 million, from public education to offset revenue shortfalls. Further, property tax collections are $6 million short due to lower assessed valuation, said State Superintendent of Public Education James R. Moss.

The cuts are affecting each district differently. For instance, Salt Lake District is using reserve funds to make up for most of the cuts, said spokesman Robert Wakefield.

"That drains us to the point that if anything else happens, we could be in severe straits," he said, but noted that the cuts have not affected students' education so far.

Granite District's budget has been cut by $3.6 million, which includes legislative cuts and a drop in property tax collections. The district shaved $1.2 million from its building program, postponing plans to reroof some buildings, blacktop parking lots and purchase more portable classrooms.

The district has also put off buying some vocational education equipment. Teacher training has dropped off, and all travel has been eliminated, said Superintendent John Reed Call.

Over $400,000 was cut from career ladders in Granite. Instead, the money intended to reward teachers for excellent work was used in other areas to make up revenue cuts from the state.

The school board still has to decide where to take nearly $500,000 in cuts. "I expect some wage earners are going to be affected," Call said.

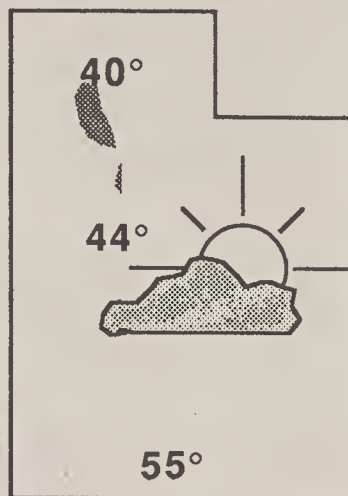

Moss fears that recent budget cuts will force some school districts to operate in the red. Duchesne, Garfield, Grand, Iron, Nebo, North Sanpete and North Summit districts are already in deficit, he said.

"If we get three or four more districts in deficit, that is 25 percent of the districts that are operating in the red," Moss said. "That says you need to re-examine your funding system."

Grand and North Sanpete districts are operating under the heaviest debt. Grand's red ink totals $134,000 — 3.8 percent of its maintenance and operating budget.

Sheriff's order called unconstitutional

LA, La. (AP) — A sheriff's deputies routinely stop and search blacks in white neighborhoods because they're likely "up to no good," a civil rights activist said. Parish Sheriff Harry Lee announced the plan aimed at curbing a rash of armed robberies in suburban New Orleans. "We will stop everybody that we see doing business in the neighborhood," Lee, the American-born son of Chinese parents who took office in 1980, said in a news conference. "If there are some young blacks driving a car late at night in a predominantly white area they will be stopped." The plan drew immediate protest, and state Attorney General William Guste said it might violate civil rights law. He planned to meet with Lee. The sheriff said the policy was prompted by a rash of crime in which robbers follow shoppers home and mug them. Five robberies occurred Monday, he said, but did not give the race of the robbers or victims.

"If you live in a predominantly white neighborhood and two blacks are in a car behind you, there's a pretty good chance they're up to no good," Lee said.

Martha Kegel, executive director of the Louisiana American Civil Liberties Union, called for Lee's resignation.

"He is a despicable bigot and the comments that he made ... are comments that all citizens of good will have to find despicable and unacceptable. For a public official in 1986 to tell black people that, because of their race, ... there are certain neighborhoods that they cannot enter without being questioned is tantamount to advocating apartheid," Kegel said.

She said the ACLU would file a suit over the plan.

"Did he really say that?" asked George Strickler, an assistant professor of law at Tulane University. He called the plan "grossly unconstitutional" and said he did not believe it would survive court challenges.

Lee said $10,000 to $15,000 in overtime had been approved for stepped-up patrols in which 45 uniformed and plainclothes officers will cruise residential areas and commercial parking lots.

"It is not our intent to harass anybody, black or white," said Lee, 54. "I'm apologizing in advance for that happening."

The sheriff said his statistics indicate that 79 percent of all robberies in November were committed by blacks and that 73 percent of all burglary victims were white.

The Daily Universe announces the Man of the Semester

Spencer John Palmer

Dr. Spencer J. Palmer, associate director of the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies, has been named as the Daily Universe's Man of The Semester.

Palmer was selected by the editorial staff because of his impetus in bringing the Religion in Africa conference to BYU in October. The conference brought scholars from around the world to our campus to share in this first-of-its-kind conference in North America. The two-day colloquia provided students and faculty, as well as visiting scholars, the opportunity to learn about Africa's religions and ideology from a historical and futuristic perspective.

The conference brought prestige to the University and insight to the seeking members of its community. Said one visitor regarding the conference: "My recollections of Provo, the University, the awesome Wasatch, and the invigorating gathering of Africanist colleagues will always be pleasurably fused."

Although many others were involved with the conference, Palmer represents the enormous collective preparation and sacrifice necessary for organizing a conference of this magnitude.

Palmer has served in several positions at BYU, including Director of BYU's Jerusalem Study Abroad in 1980 and the Center for International and Area Studies from 1975 to 1980. He received his bachelor's degree from BYU in 1948 and his master's and doctorate degrees from the University of California at Berkeley in 1958 and 1964 respectively.

He is the author of several books including, "Korean-American Relations: The Period of Growing Influence, 1887-1895," and "Korea and Christianity: The Problems of Identification with Tradition."

He is married and has three children.

Goodbye, Dad — I love you

The other day my mom called to tell me my dad had died during his sleep. It was totally unexpected.

I don't know if he was ready for it, but I'm sure that I wasn't. I guess nobody ever is. Even if death comes after a lingering illness or late in life, it's a difficult thing to cope with and accept.

Some things make it easier.

President Thomas S. Monson has always been a favorite apostle of mine, partly I suppose because he bears a striking resemblance to my dad.

In President Monson's address at the 16-stake fireside last month, he talked specifically about having a heritage and honoring our parents. He said we should take the time to write to our parents and tell them how much they mean to us.

In my case a letter wouldn't have made it in time, but a phone call would have — he died just a few hours after the fireside. I was lucky because he had come from Idaho to see me that weekend and I had the chance to tell him I love him.

Most of us have been exposed to the series of commercials sponsored by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints with the theme "If you love 'em, tell 'em," but do we really do it? You've probably heard the road to damnation is paved with good intentions.

The hours surrounding funerals tend to be a day of recollections for those who survive. "Did I tell him I love him? Did I do things with him that I've always wanted to do? What if I haven't been me?"

Although I wasn't ready for him to go, I was even less ready for myself.

In school our tests and exams are scheduled. We know we start cramming for finals. In life, we don't have that luxury; we need to be prepared at all times.

The funeral went smoothly. For the past 10 years he has been what song he wanted me to play on my harp for the service. But, I still thought I had another 20 years left to practice.

I wasn't prepared for the musical number the way I wanted to be and even now I don't know that I could play better. But at least I have time, if I take advantage of it, to prepare for my own "final exam."

At the cemetery I overheard one of my friends telling her she had to leave. I told her to be sure and tell her dad that she loves him before she went.

Seat belts are no longer 'uncool'

Why do people have a fear of car safety belts?

Even today, car passengers who buckle their seat belt immediately offend many of the vehicle's drivers.

"What's the matter — don't you think I know how to drive?" or something similar is still heard upon occasion.

Haven't we yet realized that wearing a safety belt is not an admission of poor driving skills? Don't we yet understand that safety belts are not only to be worn during difficult driving conditions, but also on those quick around-the-corner trips to the store?

Three out of four accidents causing death happen within 25 miles of one's home, according to statistics from the Utah State Department of Public Safety. At no speed is it too slow to wear a seat belt. Four out of five accidents occur at speeds under 40 mph. Deaths occur at speeds as low as 12 mph.

Many people are already aware of these statistics. Why then is wearing a seat belt still considered "uncool" by so many?

Other statistics tell us that the chances of being killed are 25 times greater if one is thrown from a car. Approximately two out of three motor vehicle occupant deaths in Utah would not have happened if safety belts were worn.

These statistics are largely ignored because many people are "exceptional drivers." Even with Utah's new law making wearing a seat belt mandatory, many people still wear them.

In an attempt to increase the wearing of safety belts, merchants have offered contests and prizes for motorists wearing their seat belts while patronizing their respective up windows.

Such efforts are commendable, but the only way to decrease traffic deaths through seat belt use is to change the mental attitudes towards them.

We all need to get into the habit of buckling up instead of worrying what other passengers or the driver might think. Wearing a seat belt is not an admission of poor driving skills, it is instead an indication of good driving skills, and a concern for safety and the law.

Buckling a seat belt is a matter of habit. It's a very small step and not a difficult one to learn.

Stolen sunglasses

Editor:

At the beginning of the school year, I went to the McDonald Health Center and as I picked up my prescription, I found a pair of expensive sunglasses that someone left on the counter. I got my prescription and as I turned to leave, I grabbed the sunglasses.

Yes, I stole them.

To make a long story short, I have now turned them in to the ELWC Lost and Found so that the owner may go and claim them. Just in case someone other than the owner is contemplating claiming the glasses, not only will you be as dishonest as myself, but you will also be taking the risk of going cross-eyed. They are prescription sunglasses.

I apologize to the owner for having stolen them.

Save the grass

Editor:

In response to Leslie Fowler's letter of Dec. 3 about Statman and grasswalking: I, too was amused by Statman's column and by the fact that walking on the grass apparently costs each student around $3 a year. (By the way, he didn't mention how much was spent on providing sidewalks).

However, the point is, or should be, that the money is not the point. BYU has one of the best campuses and settings that I have seen. (I can only think of one in my experience that compares, but it's much more expensive than BYU and does not have the mountain backdrop).

So why should we sacrifice the great beauty of the grounds by selfish savings of a couple of steps (an average of five or so, didn't Statman say?)? Diagonal trails of dead grass can be replaced occasionally, but in the meantime it is really worth it?

So enjoy your Christmas, but give a small gift to BYU — please don't walk on the grass.

Facts and claims

Editor:

Regarding the claim that South Africa is the only western nation to spend more on education than on defense and that it has increased education expenditures by more than 700 percent in the past few years.

It was correctly pointed out that, according to the figures I stated earlier, the increase in education was 698 percent more than what was spent in 1976.

Now let's read between the lines.

First, is it not significant that one must go back 12 years before one can substantiate even a part of the original claim?

Second, according to the Statistical Yearbook, inflation between 1976 and 1984 created a deterioration of 103 points in the buying power of the rand (South Africa's currency), using 1980 as the benchmark.

Third, other budget items, such as military expenses, have generally kept pace with or exceeded increases in education expenditures.

Fourth, in a nation where whites constitute only 17 percent of the population it is unpardonable that they should continue to receive the majority of the country's public education money.

Black education is geared towards vocational training whereas whites enjoy a traditional liberal arts upbringing.

Any change in South Africa will continue to be cosmetic until the fundamental problems of the absence of civil rights and of universal suffrage are addressed. To illustrate, a better fed slave is still a slave nonetheless.

Facts and claims are wonderful things when analyzed critically and with an appreciation of their nuances.

State budget

Editor:

Not too many years ago, I read about budget surpluses in Utah. Now we have a major crisis with the current budget shortfall.

Where did all the money go? What portion of it is loss of federal funds, and what portion is loss of tax revenues?

Are there some costly new state programs? Has the budget for existing programs increased dramatically? Bangerter and the state legislature must account for our current predicament!

Let's find out what we're paying with our state government before we cut high priority items like education or raise our taxes.

Wednesday there was an article in The Daily Universe on the loss of revenue for Utah County; let's see the same with more detail on the state budget problems.

Keep debating

Editor:

I must agree with Eric Niven that a potentially nationally ranked team serves the chance to prove itself. However, what should be done with that has already PROVEN itself to be a high national ranking and that is ranked Number 1 in the nation?

Certainly we should not cancel a program of this sort. "What program?" The answer is simple — The Debate squad. But once again you up and ask, "Why would the administration cancel a program which has even beyond that of our beloved team?" Well, I wish I could answer, but to date, the administration has provided answers or justification.

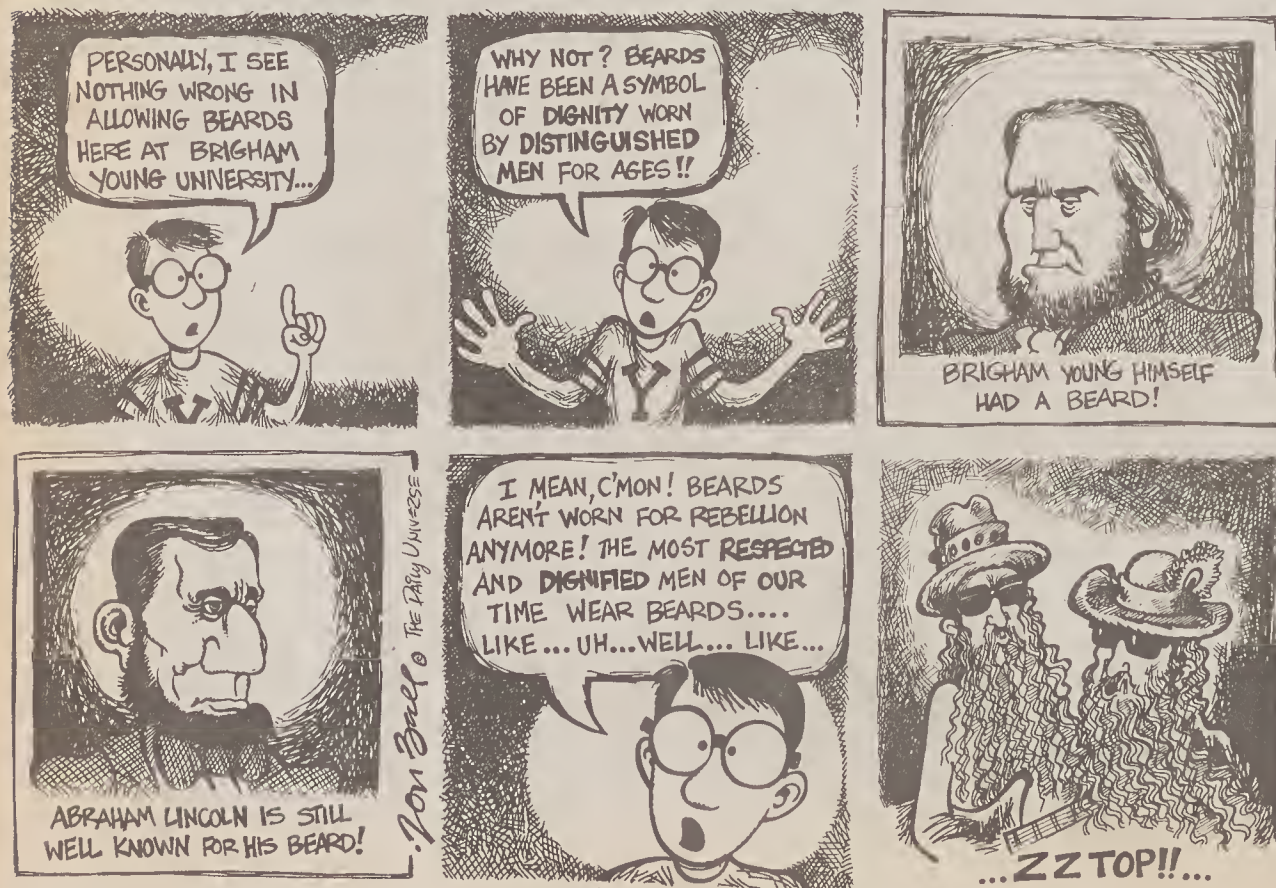

Why do those who made the decision mainly President Ballif, refuse to forward with the facts? Why are we in the dark as to the reasoning behind the decision? Since the administration to provide reasons for cancelling the university's debate program, which tally became a member of the professional debating fraternity in 1922, I will the justification for keeping any program at BYU.

The mission of this university is given on page 9 of BYU's 1986-87 Catalog. It is to "... Help students clearly, communicate effectively, establish clear standards of intellectual integrity." To quote from the same, "Scholarly research and creative expression among both faculty and students is essential and will be encouraged by these statements enough to justify a proven debate team, especially in the fact that we have yet to be given a chance to weigh against them."

With these reasons in mind, I can reason to cut the only competitive program that this university has. To President Ballif, the man responsible for the decision not to fund the needed funding, I make a challenge to meet with the entire team and justify your decision. A debate team is an opportunity to justify our program.

Experiences in Poland enhance instruction

By JAMES R. RADA
Universe Staff Writer

The old woman was a disguised messenger for the polish underground, but the apartment building owner did not know it.

Poland was under control of the Nazis. The owner had to be careful because the Germans were always trying to trap partisans. The woman was a stranger. She could have been a Nazi, so he was suspicious.

"May I have the key to the third floor apartment?" the old woman asked. Her voice was tired and weak.

"You do not live here. Go away old woman," the owner said gruffly.

"It is my daughter's apartment. She told me to come here to get some medicine. I am not well," the old woman coughed.

The owner unconsciously put his arm across the old woman's back in an effort to help her.

"Fine, here is the key."

The old woman smiled. "Thank you. You are so kind."

The old woman walked into the apartment building. Once inside and out of sight of the owner, she climbed to the attic.

Laundry from the different apartments hung to dry on clothes lines that spanned the length of the attic. She was not there for laundry, though.

From the large carpetbag she carried with her, the old woman removed a pad and pencil. Quickly, the woman made sketches and notes on the positioning of the attic doors and windows, and the relationship of the building to other buildings.

Lidia Zakrzewski, teacher, concert pianist and writer faced scenarios like this one on assignments to design escape routes between the buildings of Warsaw.

The maps she drew allowed Polish agents to escape the pursuing Nazis.

There was "only one elderly couple who taught (the Gospel) in their home. Now there are 100 Poles who teach each other. They go to Warsaw to be baptized."

— Lidia Zakrzewski,
author, BYU instructor

In the end, the maps saved about 160 lives, Zakrzewski said.

Forty-two years older now, Zakrzewski teaches religion and Polish at BYU. Even though her days as a messenger for the Polish underground and a concert pianist are over, she enjoys her new career as a professor and church writer. Her past is now part of history that she shares with her students.

Because of her involvement with the underground, Zakrzewski was sent to a POW camp after Poland lost a 64-day insurrection.

She spent the next seven months of her life in two POW camps, Sandbostel and Oberlaupen.

Because of the poor diet, Zakrzewski began starving to death. The other 200 women in her barracks helped to hide her sickness. Each day for sick call, Zakrzewski would be in a different bed. If the Germans realized you were too weak to work, "they would take you and you would disappear," she said.

Zakrzewski said she kept her morale up during this time with a sense of humor and one cheap book filled with sickening poetry.

From Germany, she went to London. Even though her professional career had ended, she won a full scholarship to the Guild Hall School of Music and Drama.

While practicing for a concert, Zakrzewski overworked her hand. "Crystals of glucose had formed on my arteries," she explained. Zakrzewski couldn't move her arm. A Belgian doctor performed an operation, considered innovative at the time, to scrape away the crystals.

There is still a long scar on her right arm from the operation. She can now use her hand and play the piano, but not as a concert pianist.

Zakrzewski has been a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints for 11 years.

She became aware of the church when her youngest son, Jack, told her that he was going to join the LDS Church.

At that point, Zakrzewski was planning to teach at Catholic colleges, but instead, investigated the LDS Church and was baptized.

Someday, she hopes to go on a mission to Poland to teach her people.

In Poland, Zakrzewski said there was at one time only one elderly couple who taught the Gospel in their home. "Now there are 100 Poles who teach each other. They go to Warsaw to be baptized."

For now, Zakrzewski has to wait, but she is not idle. She is fulfilling a calling as a church writer and contributes pieces of her work to church filmmakers.

New uses found for aspirin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many people take aspirin for headaches, but would they reach for the time-honored remedy to solve problems of pregnancy, constricted blood vessels or to ward off diseases?

Researchers said Tuesday that the well-known pain reliever, enjoying a resurgence of scientific interest, one day may be used for these conditions and more.

Aspirin, used for decades to relieve headaches and cold symptoms, is emerging as a drug with many more uses than previously believed.

Although challenged as a pain killer in recent years by acetaminophen and other drugs that don't cause the stomach problems aspirin can, the old standby may be rebounding through other new uses, they said.

At a symposium held by the George Washington University Medical Center, researchers said aspirin is increasingly being used in new clinical trials to see if it can help in treating diseases such as AIDS and cancer, as well as preventing some problems with pregnancy.

Dr. Allan L. Goldstein, chairman of biochemistry at the center and moderator of the program, said aspirin is emerging as a new "wonder drug" with many applications.

Christmas break to plan strategy

Students should seek careers early

ise Staff Writer

are time students have over Christmas break can to their advantage to plan employment strategies. Johnson, counselor at the BYU Counseling and Placement Center, said students should start seeking employment a year before they graduate. "I will want to get acquainted with prospective employers and set up some information interviews," said "Start a friendship. You wouldn't want to go into college knowing nothing about the person — the same way of getting started is to talk to your major professors, department chairmen, the Advisement Center at BYU Placement Center.

out what students in the past have done to get the said. "Get the names of companies, people to call, phone numbers to call and a calendar of visits recruiters make to the school." Most jobs are filled by friends referring friends (the hidden job market), said Johnson. "This is a disadvantage if you are an outsider, but you can become an insider if you get acquainted, study the company, have something to offer and prove that you'd fit their organization." There are several ways students can begin to prepare. The Placement Center offers a lot of workshops on subjects such as resume and letter writing and interviewing skills. They also have shelves of employer information. There will also be an employment strategy class offered winter semester. "Career Education 317 is a two credit hour class that teaches people how to do all that and more," he added. Johnson suggested that students take a light load their last semester to allow time to find work. "Sending letters, making phone calls and traveling can be really time-consuming and take a lot of work."

Safety tips offered for ski buffs; be aware of avalanche dangers

ise Staff Writer

Living an avalanche isn't as rolling in the snow. "It's not what people think, if it buries me, it's not long enough for them to get up," said Doug Hansen, a professor of Hansen Mountaineering at Brigham Young University. Hansen and an avid winter outdoorsman. "It's not that simple." There are two kinds of avalanches, he said. The "loose snow" type might be a skier but his chances of survival are pretty good if he is found quickly. "A slab" avalanche is the most dangerous. Each new snowfall forms a layer which may or may not adhere to the previous layer. Sometimes a slab as big as the slope itself can break off. When these slabs of snow hit a skier, they don't just cover him they can kill him, said Hansen. A skier from South Fork was killed within minutes after an avalanche covered him but he had already died from internal injuries," he said. Hansen is an avid skier, hiker, mountaineer and camper. Through his engineering supply store, he teaches classes in outdoor skills. One of his courses is on avalanches and how to avoid them, avoiding them and surviving them. Hansen follows the safety rules of the area and has been able to avoid an avalanche on every outing — except one. He and some friends went on a ski trip to Alta. When leaving, they called the Forest Service's Avalanche and Weather number to find out about avalanche in the area. He heard there had been recent avalanches and more importantly discovered that a skier had been killed in an avalanche there the day before. Hansen's group decided to avoid the slopes where the slide risks were

Safety rule number 2
Always take advantage of professional avalanche and weather warning services because the greatest danger of avalanches is during or shortly after a snowstorm and be aware of known avalanche paths.
The avalanche number for Provo is 374-9770. For Salt Lake it is 364-1581.
Hansen and company went to some "safer" slopes but came to an area that they considered to have possible avalanche dangers. Hansen elected to cross it first, alone.
He turned on his beacon (a beeper which sends signals to would-be rescuers), loosened his equipment and silently and carefully skied over the danger zone. The group watched closely just in case.
Safety rule number 3
If you are going to cross an avalanche path you should do the following things in order to minimize the risks.
—Make sure your beacon is on.
—loosen all equipment so that you can discard it quickly.
—Remain silent as members cross.
—Set up a lookout, to watch where the victim might be buried.
—Cross the slope one at a time.
"I felt the snow settle," said Hansen. "Then I saw the ridge break loose.
"I yelled 'avalanche!' so the others would be sure to watch where I was carried."
Within seconds, Hansen was caught in a rapids of snow. So, what else is there to do but swim.
By swimming with the flow, Hansen managed to ride the avalanche until he stopped and keep his head and one arm above the snow. He escaped with just a pulled back muscle.
If caught in an avalanche
—Ski out if possible.
—If you can't ski out then try to discard your skis and other equipment.
—Grab hold of obstructions, pull yourself out and stay on top.
—Start a swimming motion. The object is to stay on top or get out of it completely.

—Develop an air pocket if you go under the snow.
—Relax, conserve air and energy.
Hansen's courses also cover the priorities for the people not caught in the avalanche and how to conduct effective searches for victims.
Avalanche fatalities in Utah in the 1980s have already surpassed the number killed in any other entire decade, according to a report done by the Utah Avalanche Forecast Center. "Avalanches kill more Utahns than any other natural hazard," the UFAC said in the report.
Hansen recommends the cross-country skiers avalanche course to anybody who "ventures into the winter environment."
The avalanche course is offered:
Dec. 11, 7-9 p.m. and Dec. 13, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Belnap will perform Bach organ recital

Parley Belnap will complete the 11th of 22 scheduled Bach organ recitals by BYU's organ faculty when he performs Dec. 4 at 3 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC. When completed, the concerts will represent the entire known repertoire of Bach's organ compositions. BYU began them in 1985 during the 300th anniversary of the renowned composer's birth date and will continue them for more than two years. The works, as much as possible, are arranged chronologically, a difficult plan because many of the works' dates must be estimated. Belnap believes his recital will represent work in the first third to first half of Bach's composition period. Fourteen selections will be highlighted, beginning with Prelude and Fugue in C Major, BWV 545. It will conclude with one of the master's better known works, Prelude and Fugue in A Minor, BWV 543. This is the second recital in the series performed by Belnap.

Christmastime shared with Mexican children

Fund raiser helps to purchase needed supplies

By JEFFREY HAMPTON
Universe Staff Writer

The kids of Provo's Westridge Elementary School decorated a Christmas tree Wednesday for the kids of Cienaga de Castillo Elementary School in Cuautemoc, Mexico.

Zion's Bank on University Avenue paid 25 cents for each decoration made and put on their tree for a total of up to $150 by the Westridge students, said Jack Jackman. Jackman is a 6th grade teacher at Westridge and is in charge of the project.

The money will be combined with earnings from other fund raisers to buy paper, pencils and other basic supplies for the Mexican school. They have raised about $4,000 this year.

"They don't even have a chalkboard," said Jackman. "Last year we paid for a new roof on their school building."

Westridge and Castillo are sister schools, he said. There has been an exchange of teachers between the schools and many of the kids have pen pals there.

Westridge had decorated Zion's Christmas tree for four years. Kids decorated Wednesday afternoon. At 5:30 p.m., the lights were turned on and about 400 grammar grade students and their parents began singing Christmas carols.

"It's a wild time," said Jackman. "The kids get excited. We do it so they can think of somebody else besides themselves."

The students have been spending about two hours a week for two months making decorations to go on the tree.

"I made a candle and bell chains," said Vanessa Rich, a 5th grader at Westridge. Rich has participated in the fund raisers for Cienaga de Castillo since she was in the 3rd grade. "It's made Christmas more special for me," she said.

Zion's Bank branches sponsor Christmas tree money raisers for elementary schools throughout Utah. Last year 22,000 Utah kids participated.

Concert at mid-day to feature noted Chinese pianist/composer

By KENNETH S. ROGERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Yin Cheng-Zong, noted Chinese pianist, will be featured Thursday at noon in a free Music at Mid-day concert in the Madsen Recital Hall.

Yin, a native of the Southern Province in the People's Republic of China, began studying piano at the age of 7 and continued his later studies at the Shanghai Conservatory of Music.

In 1959 he won the gold medal in the World's Youth Peace and Friendship Festival in Vienna and, after studying at the Leningrad Conservatory for two years, he took second place in the 1962 Tchaikovsky Piano Competition.

In 1965 he became the soloist for the Central Philharmonic Society of Peking, and this led to performances

Free concert to feature student performers

The BYU Music Department will present "An Evening of Chamber Music" featuring student brass, string and woodwind ensembles, Dec. 4 at 6 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

Admission is free.

According to Darrel Stubbs, chamber music coordinator for the music department, the four ensembles performing represent some of the best chamber groups on campus.

"These groups play without conductors," he said. "There is a great musical development when an ensemble plays without a conductor — a different kind of musicianship development."

The program will feature four numbers by the brass sextet: "Rondeau" by Mouret; "Gypsy Rondo" by Haydn; "Church Sonata No. 6" by Mozart and "God is Our Refuge and Strength" by Pachelbel.

These numbers are largely new arrangements by contemporary composers, adapting for brass these positions originally written for musical media, said Stubbs.

The flute quartet will perform Canon in D by Pachelbel.

Two student string ensembles perform the Quintet in D Major, the Quintet in C Major. Both are by Mozart and the Quintet are done in E flat Major, by Mann.

Wrestlers beat Minnesota

By RAND WALTON
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU wrestling team out-muscled the visiting grapplers from Minnesota on its way to a season-opening victory Wednesday in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The Cougars won six of the 10 matches to dump the Gophers, 26-11.

The Cougar's entry in the 118-pound division, Chris Brown, who is ranked No. 11 in the nation, started the meet with a strong performance. Brown sent his opponent to the mat several times before the 15-point default rule came into effect.

Cougar freshmen Ray Freeman and John Kohls improved their undefeated individual records to 2-0 and 3-0, respectively.

The Gopher's Dave Dean, who is ranked No. 6 in the nation, was pushed to his limit by Cougar sophomore Mark Willis in the 190-pound match. In the second period, the nationally-ranked Dean jumped out to a 5-2 lead before Willis executed a reversal to pull within a point, 5-4.

In the third period, Willis was able to escape the grasp of Dean to tie the score. Willis was then able to get on top of Dean, but Dean was immovable and the match ended in a tie.

In another battle to the finish, BYU's Dean Mitchell came from behind to down his opponent. Entering the third period the wrestlers were locked at 7-7. However, two take-downs late in the final period propelled Mitchell to the victory.

In the final match, BYU's sixth-ranked heavyweight Jim Nielsen overpowered and pinned his opponent with 48-seconds left in the first period.

The Cougar wrestlers will participate this weekend against the best teams in the nation at the 40-team Caesar's Palace Invitational in Las Vegas, Nev.

Lady cagers lose to USC, 93-83

By LYNDA WALKER
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU women's basketball team was defeated by the University of Southern California Wednesday night 93-83 in the Marriott Center.

The Cougars stayed within 10 points of USC during most of the game and BYU center Tresa Spaulding furnished the basket that brought the Cougars to a 14-14 tie. But USC took the lead again and BYU was only able to come back within five points of their opponents for the remainder of the meet.

"When we got back to that five, we didn't have patience on offense," said Cougar coach Courtney Leishman.

"I feel good about the game all around. We didn't quit, we hung in there. It's early in the season and we're still young," he said.

USC's forward Cherie Nelson lead in scoring with 32 points.

BYU's Cathy Nixon lead the Cougars with 20 points and both 6-7 senior Spaulding and Susan Shumway added 19.

BYU will compete in the Boise State Invitational in Boise, Idaho on Dec. 5 and 6.

Teams scheduled for the tournament are the University of Nevada-Reno, Portland State, and Boise State University.

Cougars explode win over USU

By MID BUXTON
Universe Sports Editor

It took a while to find the right formula, but once the Cougars found the right formula, the Utah Aggies could only watch their basketball domination of the game to an end.

The Cougars opened its regular season Wednesday by downing the Utah Aggies 100-86, which killed a nine-game losing streak dating back to the game, BYU had not defeated USU since 1981, when the Aggie-led Cougars pulled out a victory in Logan. It was 1980 when BYU beat them in the Marriott Center.

The streak shifted last night as BYU Head Coach Ladell Andersen led the magical combination of elements with 8:30 left in the half.

The Cougars grabbed the opening basket and scored the first basket, but in the next 11 minutes watched as the Aggies built a 35-23 lead. For the five minutes after the elements came together, however, BYU outscored the Aggies 5-2 and went ahead 38-37.

The lead changed hands eight more times and was tied once before BYU's Jeff Chatman made two free throws to put the Cougars up 49-48.

Chatman onto the lead until two free throws by USU's Nathan Andersen tied the score at 55 with less than a minute left in the half.

With two seconds left in the first half, USU's Bob Capener rocketed the ball from outside the three-point perimeter, and the Cougars moved to the lockerroom with a 58-55 advantage.

The second half was tight for the first 10 minutes, but BYU totally dominated the last quarter of the game to run away with the win.

"Size — that's exactly where the difference was," said USU Coach Rod Tueller after his team was outmuscled by a larger and deeper Cougar squad.

His team was only outrebounded 36-35, but the rotation of BYU big men Mike Smith, Tom Gnetting, Jeff Chatman, Jim Usevitch, Greg Humphries and Brent Stevenson wore down the shallower Aggie team.

Gnetting led BYU scorers with 19 points and dominated the boards with a game-high 14 rebounds. Mike Smith followed closely behind in scoring with 18, including four straight points in the first half that ignited BYU's comeback.

Three other Cougars scored in double figures to balance the attack. Chatman had 15, Capener 14, and freshman Marty Haws had 10 points.

"This team is quite different," said Andersen. "You don't have to depend on Capener scoring 25 points and Chatman scoring 25 points to win the ball game."

Aggie captain Kevin Nixon led all scorers with 24 points, followed by Nathan Grant with 19 and Reid Newey with 18 for USU. Newey hit three 3-point shots, but his hot hand was cooled by the quick defense of Haws, who had two steals and led the game with nine assists.

"I thought Haws did a great job on Newey," said Andersen.

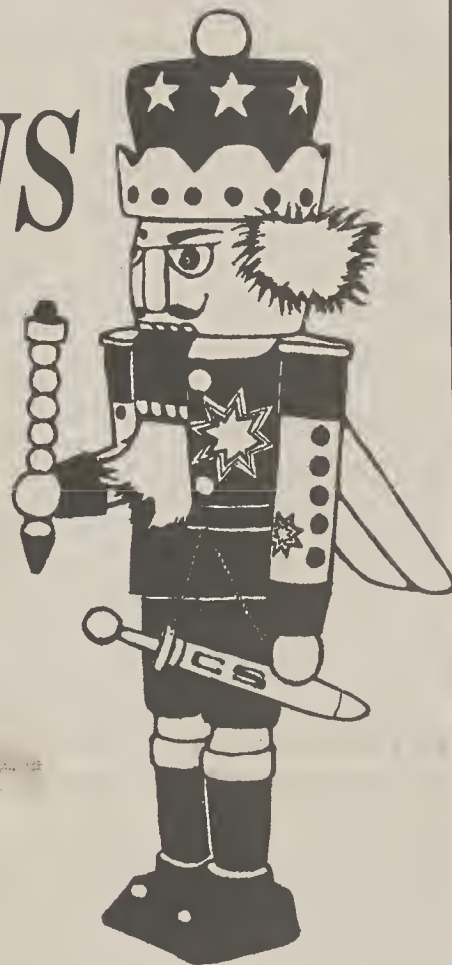

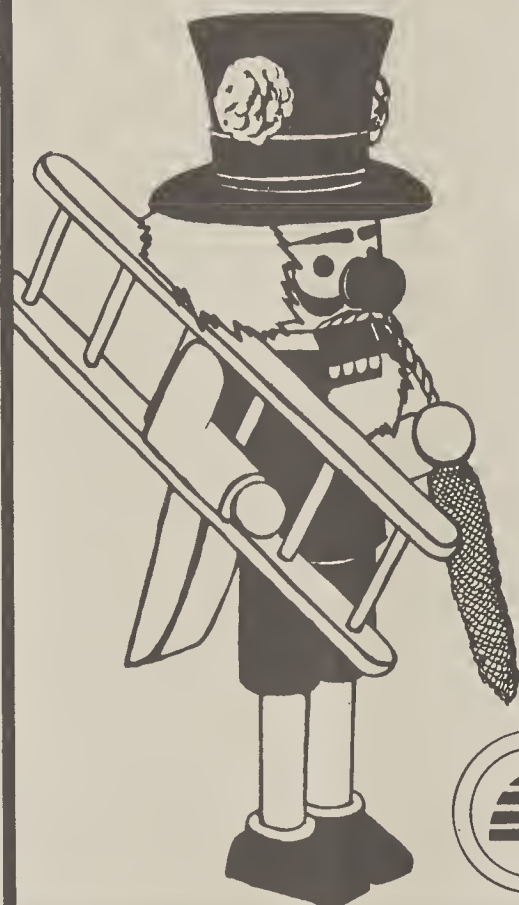

The second half was a close battle for the first 10 minutes as BYU maintained a 75-74 lead with 10:27 left. From that point it was all BYU as the Cougars ran away with the rest of the game. It was a steady wearing down of the Aggies, and the 14 point spread at the end of the game represented BYU's biggest lead.

Air Force Falcons hope to end year with win over 'Y'

Editor's Note: This is a guest column about the Saturday's Air Force-BYU game. The writer, Mike Burrows, covers the Cadets for the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The cold air now blowing down on the Air Force Academy from high atop the Rockies' Rampart Range is not permanent, as the AFA football team can tell you.

Should Air Force beat rival Brigham Young on Saturday at Falcon's Stadium, in front of ABC Sports cameras, the entire 18,000-acre campus suddenly will feel warm again.

Rest assured, this has not been a season scripted in full favor of the Falcons. Their backs, uncharacteristically, are against the wall.

Setbacks to Wyoming (23-17), Notre Dame (31-3), Army (21-11) and Rice (21-17) — yes, Rice — have made the 6-4 Falcons feel like 1986 just wasn't meant to be.

With one exception. Despite all their heartache, all their trauma, all their still fresh memories of a 12-1 finish a year ago, they can still beat BYU while a whole nation watches, or at least the part not tuned into the Army-Navy game from Philadelphia.

After all, though Air Force was stunned at poor, homely Rice, didn't BYU lose to lowly Oregon State at Cougar Stadium?

Didn't BYU lose at Cougar Stadium to Colorado State, 24-20, one week after Air Force handled the Rams, 24-7, with ease?

Air Force also defeated San Diego State at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Perhaps, then, this makes for a season-ending clash of two knocked from the national summit.

But enough of the comparisons of scores. They're silly, anyway.

Air Force wants to beat BYU because, well, the Falcons don't like the Cougars. Never have, probably never will. And the Falcons believe the feeling is mutual.

"They don't like us, and we certainly don't like them. But I also think both teams have an awful lot of respect for each other," said Terry Maki, the Falcons' All-American senior linebacker from Libby, Mont.

"We have to take a long, hard look at ourselves now. Each and everyone of us," said AFA senior Tom Rotello, the two-time All-WAC cornerback from Denver who has 17 career interceptions, close to the WAC record of 20.

"We really don't have any other choice. We have to come together," Rotello said.

"We like winning around here too much to start pointing fingers. We don't have another chance after BYU. If we don't pull together, this game is all she wrote."

Air Force was idle last week, which should be good news to BYU. This year, the Falcons are 0-3 when they've played after an open date. Only the loss to Notre Dame is not included.

Yet the Falcons insist they have erased from memory their embarrassing trip to Houston two weeks ago, when Rice's defense, the Southwest Conference's most abused unit, held the AFA wishbone to just 10 points, despite 13 of Air Force's 14 offensive possessions ending in Rice's territory.

After a 5-1 start, the Falcons have lost three of their last four games, their once-mighty wishbone has accounted for only 46 points, and that is after Air Force exploded for 45 and 40 points, respectively, in back-to-back victories over Utah and Navy in mid-October.

"I guarantee you, we got over the Rice loss a heck of a lot quicker than we did the Army game," said third-year AFA Head Coach Fisher DeBerry, who is 0-2 against the Cougars and 26-9 overall. "We've had no trouble putting Rice out of our minds."

"Why? Because we play BYU next, that's why. There isn't one guy on this team of ours who I have to remind who we're playing next. You'd better believe we'll be ready to play."

And so, too, will BYU.

When the Falcons and the Cougars clash, even in "off" years, you don't expect anything less.

Coach Reid realized dream when he joined BYU's staff

DAIS PATTEN
Sports Writer

the basketball coaching at BYU nine years ago was a true for Assistant Head Coach Reid.
all and BYU have been "as far as I can remember," a Springfield native. "I used to go to the Smith Fieldhouse and sit on the bench just hoping to get a game," said Reid.
Reid played his prep basketball at Payson High School. As a senior, he was an all-state athlete in basketball and baseball. He was named MVP in the North-South basketball game.
After graduation Reid enrolled at BYU and played on the freshmen basketball team.
The next two years at BYU were of Eastern Utah, where he was named to the Junior College All-American team in baseball.
Reid moved to Weber State College where he played under Dick Motta, who was the coach of the Dallas Mavericks in the NBA.
Motta played a large role in Reid's decision to go into coaching.
Reid, a great coach and a great player, said. "All of the coaches

I've worked with, both as an athlete and as a coach, have had an influence on me."

Reid's first coaching position came in 1971 at Payson High School. While at Payson High, Reid's overall records were 50-26 for basketball and 35-11 for baseball.

From Payson High Reid moved to Clearfield High School. His overall basketball record there was 60-24, and he took Clearfield to the state tournament for the first time in five years.

Since joining BYU in 1978, Reid has been responsible for recruiting. Reid has enjoyed a high measure of success in recruiting, but Reid admits it is sometimes hard to attract the best talent.

"The non-LDS athlete faces a major challenge at BYU," said Reid. "Even to get the best LDS athletes requires a lot of work."

BYU Head Coach Ladell Anderson likes the work Reid does.

"Coach Reid presents himself and the school very well," he said. "He keeps us competitive, he gets good athletes every year."

Coach Reid plays a major role in BYU's defensive schemes.

"He has a great knowledge of the defensive end of the court. He does a great job for us, I'd say he's as good as any in the country," said Anderson.

Reid predicts a good year for BYU.

"The number one thing for a team is good chemistry," said Reid. "Good character people pull together, and we have good character. We're experiencing a happy family situation. We would like to be playing 10 people regularly."

Reid would like to be a head coach, but has "turned down several very attractive offers" to stay at BYU.

Virtanen, Duncan awarded District VII Academic honors

Sari Virtanen of Sivikkala, and Dylann Duncan of Salt Lake City, have been selected to the District VII Academic All-Volleyball Team.
In the post-season honors, BYU's Sari Virtanen is one of eight women named to the 1986 Broderick Cup in volleyball.
Virtanen, a senior outside hitter for the Cougars, and Duncan, a sophomore blocker, were among six women named to the team for their volleyball and academic achievements.
Virtanen is majoring in communication and Duncan in electrical engineering.
Other women named were Leigh Halliwell, Jeri Wigley, Idaho State; Sherry Grath, Pacific; and Sherry L.A.

All six names will now be placed on the final GTE ballot. Voters will be nationwide members of the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Salmi, a 5-10 junior from Kurikka, Finland, has received numerous honors this season which include: 1986 Volleyball Player of the Year of the High Country Athletic Conference, Most Valuable Player of both the BYU Invitational and the UCLA/NIVT tournament, which is considered a warmup for the NCAA tournament.

The Broderick Company, the oldest manufacturer of women's athletic apparel, established the Broderick awards 10 years ago in 10 different sports to acknowledge the achievements of women athletes.

Others nominated for the award are Karen Dahlgren of Nebraska, Lisa Ice of San Jose State, Annie Kniss of UC Riverside, and Elaine Oden of Pacific, Liane Sato of San Diego State, Tammy Webb of Arizona State, and Anne Westerkamp of Illinois Benedictine College.

The winner in each sport will automatically qualify for consideration for the Broderick Cup, an award given annually to the nation's outstanding collegiate athlete.

BYU is preparing this week for its first-round NCAA tournament match against Washington. The match with the Huskies is scheduled for Friday night at 7:30 in the Smith Fieldhouse.

Tickets are $4 for the general public and $3 for students.

If BYU wins, they will host the Western Regionals. The winner of the regional will go to the final four.

Lady golfers 7th after two rounds at Desert Classic: USC holds lead

BYU's women golfers are in seventh place in the Desert Classic in Palm Springs, Calif., and 29 strokes behind the tourney leader Southern California after the second round of action.

BYU finished the first round in ninth place with only seven shots off the lead taken by UCLA.

The 36-hole second round team totals are: 1. Southern California 600, 2. Arizona State 601, 3. USIU 610, 4. New Mexico State 611, 5. Arizona 614, 6. UCLA 616, 7. Brigham Young 629, 8. San Diego State 638, 9. Long Beach State 645, 10. Washington State 674, 11. Oregon State 677.

Individual tourney leaders are Ce Ce Studer of NMSU with 145, and Martina Kock of Arizona with 146.

BYU's Karen-Mike Zielenski leads the Cougars with 79-76 155 which is 10 shots from the individual tourney lead.

"We played a good front nine, but let it get away from us a little on the back nine," said BYU coach Gary Howard. "But we are up from yesterday and that's good. The juniors and seniors are starting to carry the load better in this tournament, and that's a good sign for us."

As time goes by, many of us will experience some degree of hearing loss. But, fortunately, in most cases hearing loss can be corrected. That's why it's so important to take advantage of Mountain Bell's free speech and hearing screenings when we come to your town. These screenings, administered by the University of Utah's Department of Communication Disorders, can help identify problems you may have and recommend further treatment. The dates and locations are listed below. So, if you're having problems with your hearing, please come by and see us.

Construction falls in county

PROVO (AP) — Statistics show that non-residential building has dipped 55 percent in Utah County from last year's figures, says a national authority on the construction market.

A report by F.W. Dodge, a division of McGraw-Hill in New York City, reveals that such construction in the county through October was around $21.6 million, down from $47.7 million during 1985.

Richard Bradford, executive vice president of the Utah Valley Industrial Association, said the data likely was accurate.

"We're in a bit of a recession in this county. There is a great deal of pessimism, steel operations in particular," he said. "People have adopted a wait-and-see attitude that affects both land prices and building."

Bradford said the central Utah area's recession will end when USX Corp. announces its Geneva Works is reopening.

However, Jim Woods, a Salt Lake City research analyst, said the figure might be skewed upward by an unusually large project — the Stouffer Foods plant in Springville, for example — the previous year.

"It's not necessarily an accurate measure of economic conditions," he said.

At the same time, the firm reported residential building is up 20 percent, or about $65 million.

"Now there are lower interest rates on top of lower base prices," Bradford said.
